HD Supply Chief People Officer Named Among Most Powerful and Influential Women in Georgia

ATLANTA – November 3, 2016 – HD Supply proudly announces Chief People Officer (CPO) Meg Newman as one of the Georgia Diversity Council’s Most Powerful and Influential Women.

The Georgia Diversity Council, a chapter of the National Diversity Council, presented Newman and 11 fellow businesswomen from across the state with the honor at the Georgia Leadership Conference in Atlanta on October 21. This award recognizes women in business who demonstrate leadership excellence as well as a commitment to high ethical standards, professional excellence and the community’s well-being throughout their career.

“We are extremely proud of Meg and her accomplishment,” said HD Supply Chairman and CEO Joe DeAngelo. “Meg is an inspirational leader that is passionate and committed to consistently delivering on our Customer, Associate and Shareholder Promises.”

Newman has served as CPO at HD Supply since December 2007 and has built the human resources function into an integral strategic business partner while providing valuable insight and strong business acumen in support of each of HD Supply’s business units. Newman holds a bachelor’s degree in Psychology from Coe College and a master’s degree in Sociology from the University of Wisconsin. Newman is also a member of the HR Leadership Forum, the Society for Human Resource Management and the National Association of Wholesalers – Distributors.
